IT'S ALL GOOD NEWS. YOU'RE AT ANCHOR BAR!

THE REAL STORY

THE REAL STORY OF THE BUFFALO Chicken Wing began late one night in 1964 as a few hungry friends of the Belissimo family visited their legendary restaurant—The Anchor Bar, in Buffalo, New York—looking for a snack.

It had been a busy night, and there wasn't much left in the pantry for co-owner Teresa Belissimo to cook.

Teresa improvised, cutting some chicken wings into two parts—the now infamous “flaps” and “drums”—and deep-frying them until they were crispy on the outside and tender in the middle. She tossed them in a buttery hot sauce and served them with celery and a side of Bleu Cheese dressing.

Of course, Teresa's new creation—The Buffalo Chicken Wing—was an instant hit, and people flocked to Anchor Bar to try this new taste sensation. Today, the Buffalo Wing is an international culinary phenomenon.

Sixty years, a James Beard Award, and countless other honors later, Anchor Bar remains the home of the “Best Wings in the World.”
